Art & Private Client insurance

VALUING YOUR CONTENTS

Valuing your contents

It's important that your contents and valuables are insured for the correct amount in case of a loss. Unfortunately this is often not the case, with many clients finding themselves under-insured following a claim. To help reduce this risk we have created the following checklist to help you assess the value of your contents and valuables.

You should always ensure that your sums insured represent the full replacement value of your contents and valuables, not their original purchase price:

- Contents this should reflect the value of all your contents including those stored in any outbuildings, attics and cellars.
- Fine Art and Antiques to ensure the sums insured reflect the full market value you should keep abreast of current market trends. We would advise obtaining a professional valuation from a reputable valuation company every 5 years.
- Jewellery With many valuable jewellery pieces being of unique design or provenance, it is vital that they are insured for their correct market value. We recommend otaining a professional valuation every 3 years by a specialist jewellery valuation company who is either a Fellow of the Gemmological Association (FGA) or belongs to a professional association such as the National Association of Jewellers (NAJ).

We recommend that you carry out a walk-through annually to ensure all items are documented and new acquisitions captured.

With regard to your fine art, antiques, jewellery and other valuables we work closely with a number of leading valuation firms who can assist you. Further details can be found at the end of this document together with details of firms providing physical security measures to help protect your home and contents from anything untoward.
